What's On

Pathways on Tour

We have our first round 'Pathways on Tour' events happening around the state at the Children's Contact Services in Hobart, Launceston and Devonport. The response has been fantastic, but we still have some spaces available in Hobart and Devonport if you would like to come. The Hobart event will include a segment from the Parenting Separately Coordinator.

Details of events

Launceston – Wednesday 7th March, 10.30 – 11.30am at 6 Paterson Street, Launceston

Devonport – Wednesday 7th March, 2.30-3.30pm at 70 North Fenton Street, Devonport (spaces available)

Hobart – Thursday 22nd March 11am to 12 noon at 18 Clare St, New Town (spaces available).

Surviving Trauma Workshops

The Blue-Knot Foundation is running workshops around the country in April and May this year. These workshops have a focus on adult survivors of childhood trauma; and working therapeutically with clients with multiple trauma experience. These workshops would be advantageous for those working in the Family Violence sector, and those working with at risk children. Click the link for further information about these workshops in Launceston on the 19th and 21st May 2018 View

How verbal abuse of Tara Costigan escalated to murder

Tara Costigan did everything by the book, but within a day of filing for a domestic violence order against her ex-partner she was dead. What went wrong? View full article

Surviving Domestic Violence

One woman's story of surviving domestic violence is told through a book, "Whose Life is it Anyway?", which will be launched in Burnie at the Café Europa on March 2 at 5pm. The author relocated to Northern Tasmania some years ago in order to rebuild her life after living in an abusive relationship.
